School lunch will be compulsory for all pupils until age 16.

Couples wanting to adopt a baby will be turned down if either of the couple is obese.

All school pupils will have one hour of compulsory games/PE every day.

Baby milk will have leptin (an appetite suppressant) added to it so that children grow up with smaller appetites.

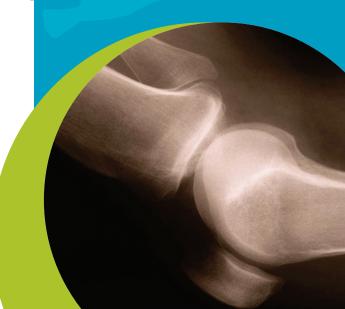

Parents who have a child who is obese when they start school will have their family allowance reduced.

People will not be given hip or knee replacement surgery if they are obese.

Children at school should be weighed each year. Schools with children with low average weights will get rewards from the local authorities.

Children at school should be weighed each year. Schools with children with high average weights will have their funding cut from the local authorities.

Food manufacturers will add vegetable purées to foods such as lasagne to reduce the calories they contain.

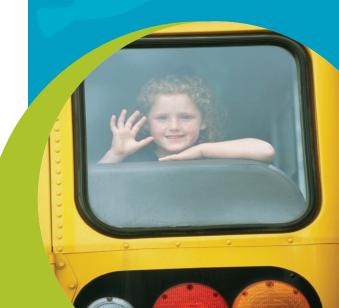

Nursery schools will introduce weight loss programmes for all overweight children.

Children who walk to school will be given money equivalent to the bus fare which they are not using.

People will be weighed before they get on a plane and be charged according to their weight.

Overweight pupils will not be allowed to go on school trips for safety reasons.

No sweets or chocolates will be allowed in schools.

